LILY VARIETIES OF NOTE

ROSELILIES
Roselilies are a type of double-petal lilies that resemble roses when they bloom. They are typically pollen-free. These beauties born of a Dutch breeding programme in the early 2000s combine the traits of Oriental hybrids with improved vase life and scent moderation. They make their debut in Flower Dome for this year's Lilytopia.
	Lilium 'Alanno' A unique type of double-petal roselily with magenta-pink petals edged in crisp white, distinguished by their rose-like appearance and lack of pollen.
	Lilium 'Snow World' A double-petal roselily in white, this lily comes with a light and pleasant fragrance, which is less strong than that of typical Oriental lilies.

LONGIFLORUM x ASIATIC (LA) LILIES

The Longiflorum x Asiatic (LA) hybrids are on display for the first time in Flower Dome. These hybrids were first developed in the 1970s, combining the upward-facing blooms of Asiatic lilies with the smooth and long stems of Lilium longiflorum. LA lilies have a slight fragrance.

Lilium* 'Altarus'

This lily is known for its vibrant and large yellow blooms.

Lilium* 'Sunderland'

This lily is known for its vibrant orange blooms, typically reaching heights of 100cm to 110cm.

ORIENTAL LILIES

Oriental lilies are characterised by their large and strongly scented blooms. The lilies usually come in white, pink, red and may be speckled and/or bicolour.

Lilium* 'Entertainer'

Sweetly fragrant, this lily has large bright pink flowers with pink speckles and a white throat.

Lilium 'Corinthe'

This lily is known for its light pink flowers with a star-shaped white and green center.
